THE First Number of the New Series of the OVERLAND SUMMARY OF THE BOMBAY GAZETTE is a considerable improvement on anything we have yet seen turned out in a similar shape. It contains 32 pages, and is replete with interesting information on Indian subjects of all kinds. At the price, four annas, the Summary is ridiculously cheap. Sixty-nine columns of closely printed reading matter all for a mere sixpence! The fact is almost beyond belief by reason of its very marvellousness. In addition to a well-arranged and judiciously selected mass of intelligence there is a series of articles on the topics of the times, reproduced from the daily editions of the Bombay Gazette. On the whole, or taking it all in all, the Overland Summary, published at the Bombay Gazette Press, is about the best, if it is not the best, we have seen, and people desirous of keeping their friends in the mother country well informed of all that is transpiring in this far off land would be guilty of an unpardonable sin of commission if they neglected forwarding by each Mail copies of really the excellent publication we have been noticing.—Sindian.

The Bombay Gazette.

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 25, 1872.

MOST of the newspapers of this city, both English and native, as well as several of our contemporaries of the sister Presidencies, have already commented upon the fact of His Highness the Gaekwar of Baroda having refused to take advantage of the presence of the Governor-General in Bombay to pay his respects to the representative of Her Majesty the Queen. It speaks well for the native press that it, as well as the English newspapers, has with unanimity condemned His Highness for not having come to meet the Viceroy. We are not aware that even one newspaper has considered either one or other of the reasons put forward to account for his absence a sufficient cause for such an extraordinary omission on his part. Our readers must have noticed that many reasons have been mentioned as being given by His Highness to account for his absence, and there has been a great deal of speculation as to what the real cause is—more speculation amongst the natives than Europeans can generally be aware of. Europeans, as a rule, we daresay, may be inclined to look upon the absence of the Gaekwar as of but little consequence, but such a matter is discussed and commented on, amongst the natives, even to the lower strata, and is looked upon by many as a defiance of or insult to the British Government. Knowing that such is the way in which the absence of His Highness will be regarded by the people generally, the Government will probably take some steps to let H. H. Mulharao understand that he has incurred its displeasure. The first excuse of His Highness was the sickness of the Ranee and her approaching confinement, and after her premature delivery he pleaded that religion prevented his leaving home for forty days, a plea which is well known to be invalid. The child has since died, so that at the last moment a valid excuse presented itself. But we are informed on excellent authority that the Government is of opinion that neither of these excuses represented the true cause of His Highness's absence. The Gaekwar, it is suspected, declined to come because his absurd claim to put His Excellency the Governor of Bombay on his left in open Durbar had been negatived! The left would imply inferiority, and it appears that the Peishwa in old times turned the Gaekwar out of his seat at his own Durbar, and taking the post of honour himself, gave the Gaekwar (in reality his host) a place on his right as if he were guest, the Peishwa scorning to appear as the guest of his subordinate. This of course made the Peishwa sit on the left of the Gaekwar, though there is no doubt as to which occupied the inferior position. The British Government does not like to turn a man out of a seat in his own house, so that the Gaekwar in his own durbars sits in the seat of honour and claims to put his most illustrious guest on his left, ignoring that the guest has not put him (the host) out of his seat. This reason could not be alleged, but it was well known. Then it is believed that His Highness does not like meeting Scindia and the great ones of India. We have it besides on good authority from Baroda that Mulharao was strongly advised by the Resident to come, but that some of his Ministers were against it. Whether His Highness declined to come from thoughtlessness only or from a deliberate wish to assert his position, his action will, probably, be looked upon as a slight sufficient to cause some remonstrance on the part of our Government.

THE festivities attendant on Lord Northbrook's visit were most fitly closed by the magnificent banquet given in the Victoria Hall on Thursday night by the Maharajah Scindia. The Victoria Gardens around the banquetting hall were lighted up in a most elaborate and splendid manner, greatly to the delight of the crowds of native spectators who occupied every point from which a glimpse of the fairy scene could be obtained, and on the arrival of the Viceroy and at other times there were special illuminations. A distinguished assemblage of ladies and gentlemen from all parts of India had been invited by the Maharajah, through Colonel Hutchinson, to meet His Excellency the Viceroy, and the banquet itself was at once profuse and artistic in character, and though private servants were not admitted except on special application, the attendance at the dinner left nothing in that way to be desired. The Maharajah himself appeared at the commencement of, and after, dinner, his place of host being otherwise filled by General Daly. The toast of the Viceroy's health was proposed in a suitable and fluent speech by General Daly, who mentioned that the banquet had arisen out of the spontaneous expression of a desire on the part of the Maharajah Scindia to avail himself of some opportunity of showing his gratitude to the British Government and towards the present as well as the late Governor-General. Lord Northbrook, in his reply, characterised the banquet as "a truly royal" entertainment, and took occasion to return his thanks to the various officers and private individuals who have contributed so much to the success of the various schemes which have been devised to give him an honourable and cordial reception. He thanked the native Princes for having come to Bombay on this occasion and also Sir Philip Wodehouse and the various departments of the local Government for the admirable arrangements which they had made, alluded to the "princely hospitality" of Sir Albert Sassoon, and, in a supplementary speech, which was not an afterthought but the supplying of an omission, paid the highest compliments to Mr. Souter and the police force for the manner in which they had managed their arduous share in regard to the ceremonies and festivities. His Excellency was at pains to declare that he looked upon the reception which he had received in Bombay as given not to himself personally but as the representative of Her Majesty; but we may remark that the reception could not have been carried out with the great enthusiasm with which it has been unless there had been something in his Lordship's manner and in the promise of his Viceroyship calculated to evoke and sustain such enthusiasm. But while he disclaimed any desire to look upon the reception as given to himself personally, he added that it had made his visit to Bombay one of special personal gratification. In a few impressive words he announced his intention of carrying out in their strictest meaning and fidelity the promises of Her Majesty to the Princes of India, and he alluded to the magnanimity of his predecessor, Lord Mayo, as an illustration of the spirit entertained by Great Britain towards the Princes and Chiefs of India.

As his back was unfortunately turned towards one-half of his audience we could catch very little of the speech of the Hon. General Norman, and on asking afterwards a distinguished officer what that speech was about, the reply we got was that it was an account of the services of General Norman dovetailed with an account of those of General Daly. That, however, we suspect, was rather a satirical than a strictly accurate description of the oration, and at least a part of it was devoted to laudation of the Bombay Army. The Governor of Bombay also spoke with his usual tact, but the speech of the evening was that of the host, the Maharajah Scindia, who delivered himself in short paragraphs of Hindustani which were interpreted, from time to time, by General Daly. His Highness spoke in the usual style of Mahrathi eloquence, his remarks being conversational in character but delivered in an earnest and almost vehement manner. We are told, by better judges than ourselves, that General Daly's translation correctly conveyed the meaning and spirit of the Maharajah's speech, and, if so, His Highness spoke in a manner which was intended to convey and did convey an idea of complete satisfaction on his part with his relations with the British Government. He owed all he now possessed, he said, to that Government, and expressed his heartfelt gratitude at his state of Gwalior having been restored to him by the British Government when he had been unable to prevent it from joining in the rebellion of 1857. In later years he had been placed under great obligation by the late Lord Mayo, who had settled to his entire satisfaction an affair which had risen up between himself and the British Government; and within the last few days Lord Northbrook had settled another affair in a similar manner. For these benefits and for all he owed to the British Government he would be grateful both in this world and in the next; and if ever his aid should be called for he would be most glad to take the field in support of the British empire in India. Few, we think, who listened to his utterances could doubt the perfect sincerity with which the Maharajah spoke, and his emphatic speech was as fitting a close to his splendid banquet as that banquet itself was to the events of the preceding week. Readers at a distance may perhaps smile at some of the descriptions which the visit of Lord Northbrook to Bombay has evoked, as if nothing so wonderful or so splendid had ever occurred in India or in any part of the world before. We need scarcely say that the festivities and triumphal entries with which the great nations of Europe celebrate the conclusion of their successful wars are of a far more splendid and dazzling character than anything which was witnessed in Bombay during the past week. We cannot but be amused when a usually staid and grave contemporary remarks of the Maharajah's banquet, that it was a "fete and display which in virtue "of its brilliancy, profusion and taste will be "remembered by the youngest child who "witnessed only its outward manifestations, as "long as the pleasures of memory flash their oft-"recurring consolations across the gloom of "later age." We ourselves feel unequal to rising to such a height, but at such a season as that which has now come to a close a little hyperbole does not come much amiss, and, though we are afraid that the memory of the last few days will not afford very much or oft recurring consolation to be flashed "across the "gloom of later age," yet we are entitled to speak of having passed a pleasant, an interesting, and an instructive time, during which both Bombay and its visitors exerted themselves in a most laudable manner, and when much was commenced which may promote the real interests of this great empire.

Departure for Bombay.—The s.s. Olafe on the 20th inst.

WITH reference to a paragraph from the Daily Telegraph, which appeared in the supplement to our issue of the 15th instant, headed "Mr. Arthur T. Crawford," we find that some of the friends in Bombay of our late Municipal Commissioner deny that the paragraph in question had any reference to that gentleman. In the Telegraph itself only a "Mr. Arthur Crawford" was spoken of as our paragraph showed, and we should be very sorry if any unjust imputation has been thus conveyed against Mr. Arthur T. Crawford. The mistake, if it was one, and as those who ought to know, assure us it must be, was made not in Bombay but in London, and we shall lose no time in making further inquiries into the matter.

INTELLIGENCE was received by telegraph on Saturday morning of the death in England of Mrs. Green, wife of the Hon. Mr. Justice Green. At the High Court much sympathy was expressed for the learned Judge among the members of the Bar and others, upon whom the news came with surprise. Mr. Justice Green's Court was closed for the day.

ON the night of the Governor's ball at Madras a jury was "locked up" in the Clarendon Hotel. Next morning it was reported to the Chief Justice that two jurymen had been at the ball, and His Lordship informed the complainants that it rested with them to take objection to the fact, but everybody all round said "never mind," so the dancing jurymen escaped.

WE regret that we cannot learn of any progress having been made in the detection of the poisoner of the DeGa family and their innocent friends. We have not heard of any reward being offered that might even discover the coolie who left the cakes at Mr. DeGa's house. The inquest will be resumed on Tuesday in the case of the Mr. DeGa who was the first to be poisoned.

REFERRING to the rumoured defeat of the Russian force sent against the Khan of Khiva, the Indian Public Opinion, which first printed the rumour, says it did not publish the paragraph as a bazaar rumour, but "the latest information received, we understand, by Government." We are, however, in a position to state that, up to the time of his leaving Bombay, not even the Viceroy had received any information on the subject except what has appeared in the newspapers.

BY advices received from Singapore by the last China Mail, we learn that the Austrian corvette Pasana is now on her way to Bombay, where she may be expected daily. We understand that she is the first Austrian man-of-war that visits Bombay harbour. The Pasana, it will be recollected, has the Chinese and Japanese collections of articles for the Vienna Exhibition on board, of which we wrote some time ago. She is of 1,800 tons, carries 6 guns, and is commanded by Captain De Funk.

THE Indian Public Opinion vindicates its claim to the priority of information with regard to the defeat of the Russians by the Khivans. "On the evening of the 12th, apparently after reading our paper (I. P. O.,) some one telegraphed to the Bombay Gazette the above news as a bazaar rumour in the north of India." The Government of India has received no such intelligence. It may come true though, even as did the news of the fall of Herat, about a month after the announcement.

AMONG the shipping disasters of the last month is one of peculiar ghastliness—the fate of the crew of the Glenalvon. This ship was caught off Prince Edward's Island by a fearful gale, and utterly crippled. For days and weeks the hulk drifted to and fro, and at last—the provisions exhausted—the crew sank victims to famine, one by one. When boarded by a schooner, the Glenalvon was found without a soul on board, and near one skeleton was found a scrawl, telling how the whole crew had been killed by hunger.

THE Delhi Gazette's Bombay special correspondent is a young man of special geographical attainments. He cannot possibly intend the following for a joke. His friends should look after him:—"After this the Council assembled and sat with closed doors until the afternoon, pondering, I am told, over the various local matters which have been brought forward by the memorialists, and the question as to whether Scinde is to be taken away from the Central Provinces or to be handed over to the Bombay Presidency."

H. E. THE VICEROY, we believe, sent a complimentary letter to the Commissioner of Police on the police arrangements at the Investiture ceremony in his capacity of Grand Master of the Star of India; and another in his capacity of Governor-General, thanking the police for the very good arrangements made by them during his stay in Bombay, and giving them a good deal of general praise. We are glad to hear of this, because the Bombay police at present deserve all the praise that can be bestowed on them.

AFTER attending a ball at Gunnesh Khind on Friday evening, which kept His Excellency the Viceroy up till one o'clock in the morning, he went out at seven o'clock next morning and paid unexpected and unostentatious visits to several schools—the High School, the Normal Schools, and the Middle Class School in Poona. Mr. Chatfield, Director of Public Instruction, was present. The Viceroy rode down with only two Aides-de-Camp and Mr. Lee-Warner, Private Secretary to the Governor, to pioneer him. After school visiting he visited the Hospital, having a kind word for all. On Saturday afternoon, after holding a levée, he thoroughly inspected the Arsenal.

IN connection with the expedition organised under Sir Bartle Frere for the suppression of the slave trade in Africa, we are glad to learn that Mr. Mathooradas Khetsey, who is an extensive trader with the east coast of that continent, and who has been writing a series of letters in Guzerati in one of the vernacular papers on the same subject, has concluded his arrangements for proceeding thither to join the expedition, subject to the approval of Sir Bartle Frere. He leaves Bombay for Aden by this day's mail steamer. Mr. Mathooradas Khetsey is a subject of His Highness the Rao of Kutch, to whom he was introduced last week, and on being informed of his intention to proceed to Africa, the Rao expressed himself highly gratified with this spirited gentleman, and spoke to him in an encouraging and kindly manner.

THE Jubbulpore Chronicle does not agree with us (Pioneer) as to the excessive immorality that obtains at some English fairs, and considers that holiday-makers at home do not contrast unfavourably with holiday-makers in India. We may have been wrong. Certainly we have seen quite as moral behaviour at an English fair as any at an Indian méla, but at the same time we have never in this country seen any exhibition of indecency so gross as that which offends public morality at English fairs after the lamps are lighted and the better portion of the sight-seers have gone home. We strolled once through the fields at Llandaff in the dusk of the evening of the great annual fair day, and if the Jubbulpore Chronicle had ever done the same, he would certainly never have contested our statement that "you may see more impropriety in a couple of hours at a fair in England than you would observe during a whole career in India." We should be happy to receive the experience of both editors. That of our Allahabad contemporary, however, would appear to be "unfit for publication."

THE Marquis of Stafford, the Earl Grosvenor, and Viscount Lewisham, the eldest sons of the Duke of Sutherland, the Marquis of Westminster, and the Earl of Dartmouth respectively, are passengers to Ceylon by the steamer which left Southampton on the 7th instant. The Marquis of Stafford came of age this year, and the other two gentlemen will attain their majority two years hence. The young Marquis is heir to an enormous estate that is eclipsed by the expectations of Lord Grosvenor, which are valued in London at £1,000,000 per annum, should he not succeed till he reaches his fortieth year. A million sterling per annum! How many of our readers would care to visit the "gorgeous East" and to slay an elephant or two were they made heirs to such an income. We take the foregoing from a Madras paper. If these young gentlemen visit India, it is to be hoped they will have the credit of their order more at heart than certain titled men who scandalized European and native society during the Viceroyalty of Earl Mayo We understand that the Grand Duke Alexis may be expected on an early day, and also a son of the Khedive who is at present undergraduate of Oxford or Cambridge, we really forget which. Such a bevy of exalted visitors will find plenty of work for the Personal Staff!

A REMARKABLE and amusing incidence occurred in connection with Lord Northbrook's visit to the Colaba Lunatic Asylum on Thursday morning, which illustrates in a notable way the deep and sincere loyalty of the Parsee nation towards the Queen. It appears that Mr. Ruttonjee Furdoonjee Paruck, of Messrs. Menesse and Company, observing the Viceroy's cortege passing Lower Colaba Causeway towards the Asylum, thought of paying respect to His Lordship on his return in a truly oriental style. By the time the Viceregal party passed on its return Mr. Ruttonjee's bungalow, he had all the ladies of his house, upwards of a dozen, nicely dressed with silk and jewels, and kept them ready to "do respect" to the Burra Lord Saheb. The ladies had silver trays of flowers, rose-water, cotton soaked in essence of rose, &c., ready in their hands, and stood near the gateway of the bungalow. As soon as the Viceroy's carriage drove up from Upper Colaba, Mr. Ruttonjee made a sign to the coachman to pull up, and Lord Northbrook, happening to see the Parsee's signal, ordered his driver to stop. No sooner was the carriage stopped than all the young Parsee ladies rushed towards His Lordship and began to shower flowers, rose water, &c., upon him, his carriage and his horses. When a Parsee lady wishes to pay her respect to a gentleman of high position, or when she wishes to bless him, she raises her hands and cracks her fingers against her temples. This was done by the ladies of Mr. Ruttonjee's family, showing the greatest respect to the Queen's representative. His Lordship was so pleased with this unexpected manifestation of loyalty, that he repeatedly bowed to Mr. Ruttonjee and his family, and expressed himself highly pleased with the manner in which respect was shown him. Lord Northbrook's party then drove on to Parell.

IN the Times of India of the 16th instant the following paragraph appeared:—"The circumstantial account in the Bombay Gazette representing that H. H. Holkar had given Mr. Dadabhoy Nowrojee a khillut of Rs. 4,000 and an elephant, carriage, horses, and several other fine things besides at a durbar is all false from beginning to end. The writer has drawn upon his imagination, and upon that only." Next day our contemporary published a paragraph explaining that it was not the Bombay Gazette itself, but a news-letter writer who sends correspondence to us who had written the circumstantial account. The news-letter in which the information was conveyed was sent by our Mhow correspondent, of the general correctness of whose information our readers are able to judge. We have just heard from the gentleman who sends us these news-letters, and he equally with ourselves regrets that he has been led into making an erroneous statement. It may be well to let him speak for himself. He says:—"It appears that robes only were presented, valued at about a thousand rupees, and nothing else. But a special Durbar was held, and the rest of the account is quite correct. This will make me more careful in future. But, in justice to myself, I must say that I had the account I gave you on what hitherto has proved to me to be a reliable source—the same that gave me the news about Lord Northbrook coming to Burwaee, the same that gave me the information about the Raja of Dhar's doings, the same that told me about Scindia having promised the money for the line from Agra to Gwalior and some other items, all of which proved quite correct, and which yours was the first journal to publish. If you recollect, the Times of India gave it out very authoritatively that the Commander-in-Chief would this cold season visit Mhow, Neemuch, and Nusseerabad. In one of my letters I said that I doubted this very much; and shortly after that the Times of India itself announced that the projected tour was abandoned. My information was from the same source then as the present about the elephant, &c., to Mr. Dadabhoy Nowrojee. My idea is that the people of the Durbar, perhaps to give the affair more importance, gave out stories which my friend too readily believed. I know he would not willingly deceive me."

MILITARY ITEMS.

WE learn from Mhow that the head-quarters of the 49th Regiment (Princess Charlotte of Wales') are to proceed to Burwaee as a guard of honour to the Viceroy. The guard of honour will consist of 2 companies and head-quarters, with band and colours, under command of Lieutenant-Colonel Gostling and the following officers:—Captains Young and Nason, Lieutenant and Adjutant Temple, Lieutenants Fox and Des Barres, and Quarter-master McCartney.

IT has been proposed by several influential members of Madras society to entertain the officers of the 2nd Battalion of the 21st Fusiliers at a dinner at the Madras Club, before the regiment's departure for England. During the cyclone the regiment did service that Madras will not soon forget, and apart from this, Colonel Lyster and his brother officers, though their stay here has been a comparatively short one, have made themselves generally popular.—Madras Mail.

WE are sorry to hear that dengue fever is still hovering about camp. We have heard of several cases in the Civil Lines—cases which have developed the distinct marks of dengue—the scarlet rash, and stiff joints with sore bones. We had hoped to have got rid of the disease by this time, but it seems that Poona is not to get off so easily. The camp near Poona will on Monday morning be early astir. Orders have been received by the various regiments to march at 2 A.M. from their regimental camps to the great camp at Harapsur on the Sholapore road. There all the regiments will meet before daybreak. The men may sleep from their arrival there at 3 A.M. until daybreak, but the probability is that they will not. The officers will not, all events, as it is not a characteristic of Europeans to fall asleep anywhere or at any time. We humbly think that whatever may be said, the unexpressed thought will be that the Viceroy's visit is a bore and no mistake.—Deccan Herald.

THE "BOMBAY GAZETTE" OVERLAND SUMMARY.

TO-DAY'S Bombay Gazette Overland Summary will contain accounts of the grand Durbar, Sir Albert and Lady Sassoon's ball to the Viceroy and Governor (with the names of the ladies and gentlemen invited), the Byculla Club Dinner to the Viceroy, with the speeches, and all the news of the week.

THE MAHARAJAH SCINDHIA.

HIS Highness the Maharajah Scindia, G.C.S.I., left Bombay by the usual mail train from Byculla station at half-past 10 o'clock on Friday morning, half an hour before the departure of the special conveying their Excellencies the Viceroy and the Governor. The Political Secretary to Government, the Assistant Oriental Translator—in the absence of Mr. Venayek Wasudew who, we regret to learn, has been laid up with fever—and some other gentlemen were present at the station to receive His Highness. A complete company of the 21st Regiment N. I. paraded in the compound of the station as a guard of honour. A salute of nineteen guns was fired from the Saluting Battery as a mark of honour to His Highness.

THE MAHARAJAH OF TRAVANCORE.

THE 26th Regiment N. I. furnished a complete company, with band and colours, under a European officer, at the Byculla station at half-past 8 o'clock on Saturday morning last, on the departure from the Presidency of His Highness the Maharajah of Travancore, G.C.S.I. Mr. Bal Dinajee, Assistant Oriental Translator, and a staff officer of the garrison, were present at the station to receive His Highness on behalf of Government. Dr. Ross and others accompanied the Maharajah. The special train, by which His Highness left, consisted of a saloon, one second-class, six third-class, and other carriages, and reached Nassick at 3-20 p.m. It left Nassick at 10 a.m. yesterday, and leaving Khandwah at 2-15 a.m. to-day, it was timed to reach Jubbulpore at 6 p.m. A salute of nineteen guns was fired from the Cooperage Battery on His Highness's departure.

SIR SALAR JUNG.

ABOUT 8 o'clock on Friday morning, without any notice to the authorities, Sir Salar Jung, G.C.S.I., left Bombay privately by special train from the Byculla station of the G. I. P. Railway. No guard of honour, therefore, was present at the station and no salute was fired in honour of his departure, which was characteristic of the general simplicity of his manners. Dr. Bhau Daji accompanied the Minister, who will halt at Jalgaum for the purpose of making preparations for the reception of the Viceroy on His Excellency's visit to the Ellora and Ajunta Caves. Several of the sirdars and officers of the Hyderabad Residency were passengers by the train.

of this rash act we are not in a position to state. He was removed to the Hospital at Kirkee, but we hear has died of it.—Poona Observer, Nov. 23.

There is also to be seen here a length of Hodgson's Wire Tramway working.

Improvement of Handwriting in the Public Schools.—A native paper highly approves of the order issued by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, requiring Government servants to write a good and legible hand, and instructing the Educational Department to pay particular attention to the improvement of handwriting in the public schools; and wishes the Bombay Government to issue similar orders in this Presidency.

Transferences of Public Servants.—A native contemporary remarks that some Deputy Collectors have been allowed to remain at the same stations too long. This state of things, says the writer, is not quite consistent with the general rules regarding public service. Transferences of public servants, after stated periods, are beneficial to the interests of the public service, as well as of the individual servants.

Messrs. W. Gordon and C. E. Chapman, delivered over and received charge respectively of the office of Deputy the Accountant General, Bombay, on the 18th instant.—Argus.

It is stated that the local Government have sanctioned a temporary establishment for completing certain Meteorological Observations in connection with the Colaba Observatory.—Ibid.

The Victoria and Albert Museum.—We understand that the Government of Bombay have sanctioned a sum of Rs. 15,000 to be expended in supplying the Museum with handsome furniture, and in purchasing good and choice articles, worthy of being placed there, and exhibited to the public. Ever since the Museum was completed, the want of decent cases and other fittings, and of curiosities of nature and art, which alone can make the Museum worthy of its distinguished name, was greatly felt, and we are indeed glad that Government have at last seen the necessity of supplying the want above referred to.—Ibid.

"Berkeley, September 1869.—Gentlemen, I feel it a duty I owe to you to express my gratitude for the great benefit I have derived by taking 'Norton's Camomile Pills.' I applied to your agent, Mr. Bell, Berkeley, for the above named Pills, for wind in the stomach, from which I suffered excruciating pain for a length of time, having tried nearly every remedy prescribed without deriving any benefit at all. After taking two bottles of your valuable Pills, I was quite restored to my usual state of health. Please give this publicity for the benefit of those who may be thus afflicted.—I am, Sir, yours truly, Henry Allpass.—To the Proprietors of Norton's Camomile Pills."

THE QUERY OF "CURIOUS."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "BOMBAY GAZETTE."

Sir,—I think the tree referred to by your correspondent "Curious" in to-day's paper is Hibiscus Rosa-Mutabilis (called Mota-Jasoondee by the natives) A few trees are to be seen in Bombay, but it is plentiful at Poona, and flowers in August and September.

THE BYCULLA CLUB'S BANQUET TO THE VICEROY.

The following is a report of the speeches delivered at the banquet given by the Byculla Club on Wednesday evening last to His Excellency the Governor-General:—

The Hon. Mr. Gibbs said—May it please your Excellency—My Lords and Gentlemen,—I now rise to propose the toast of the evening, the health of our illustrious guest, Lord Northbrook, H. M.'s Viceroy and Governor-General of India. When it became known that His Excellency intended to visit Bombay officially with his Council, and to exercise that power of meeting within the limits of one of the minor presidencies, which although possessed by his predecessors for forty years, had never before been put in force, the members of the Byculla Club considered it a fitting occasion for them, in accordance with their custom of entertaining distinguished representativess of Her Majesty—statesmen or soldiers, or statesmen of other nations visiting Bombay, to invite Lord Northbrook to a banquet. Your Excellency has been pleased to accept the invitation, and I therefore, before proceeding further, beg to return, in the name of the Byculla Club, our best thanks for the honour you have conferred on us by becoming our guest on the present occasion. (Hear, hear.) My Lords and Gentlemen, Bombay has been honoured on several occasions by being chosen as the port of disembarkation by noblemen appointed to the highest offices in the Government of this portion of the British Empire. Some of those present can remember Lord Canning, the last Governor-General of that company of merchant princes under whose auspices this great dominion was formed, and subsequently the first Viceroy under the Crown, landing in Bombay, bringing with him the prestige of those brilliant reminiscences which surrounded the name of his father, little thinking how soon they would be out-lustred by those which would surround his own from his acts during that great crisis which followed so shortly after his assuming the reins of Government. During that eventful period, when the fame of the English name seemed darkened almost to extinction, he never lost heart, but when unable to send other assistance, encouraged and strengthened those foremost in the strife with his entire confidence, and when help at last came, owing to his able measures, and a force advanced as the avenger of the blood of some of England's fairest sons and daughters, he had the high moral courage not to forget, but to impress on its leaders the necessity of tempering justice with mercy, and that while dealing out punishment on the offenders, they should act, not in the spirit of the Indian conquerors of old, whose march was marked only by deeds of savage cruelty; but in such a manner that while the rebel and the murderer met their deserts, the name and prestige of British justice should be exalted throughout the length and breadth of the land. (Applause.) More recently we welcomed one, the recollection of whose arrival will be ever placed before the more sad memory of his end. With his heart and soul most deeply engaged in the great work of his office, Lord Mayo was lost to us ere his labours had borne fruit. What those labours were, and what would have been their natural result, has been placed on record by the able and loving pen of one of his colleagues, whose recent departure to England prevents our having the pleasure of numbering him among our guests this evening; and lastly, my Lord Northbrook, were we honoured by your Lordship choosing Bombay as the first port and city of your future dominion to visit. My Lords and Gentlemen, Lord Northbrook accepted the high office he holds, at a time when the difficulties attending such an honour had increased, when loss of health was not the sole drawback to such greatness. In accepting the appointment of Viceroy, he gave up much, and why? Not for any personal benefit or aggrandisement, but as one who felt that duty called him to serve his Queen, wherever she might command. (Hear, hear.) He had wealth, he had position, he had made that mark on the tablets of fame, which could not but lead to higher posts of honour at home—(hear, hear)—but he left all—for a time only we may hope—to come to this country, and to employ those talents with which he is endowed for the benefit of the people of India. (Applause.) I am happy to think that it requires but little force or eloquence on my part to make the toast of Lord Northbrook's health acceptable to the present company, putting aside for a moment his exalted position. I feel he will be welcomed by all classes of the present company, by those engaged in mercantile pursuits as a representative of the great house of Baring, whose name is a symbol of the greatest mercantile success, and of the highest commercial morality. (Applause.) By those gallant officers of H. M.'s Navy, whom we have the pleasure of seeing round our board, as the son of one who for some years presided over the Admiralty in a manner which rendered the name of Sir Francis Baring dear to the service for which he so ably and so successfully laboured. By the army, as a statesman, who having had much to do in the preparation of the late reforms introduced into that service, placed the scheme before the legislature and the public in such an able and lucid manner, a scheme from which much good is expected, not in making the British army more brave or more ready to do its duty, for that would be impossible—(hear, hear)—but in placing it more au courant with the present times, in clearing it from those failings which years of peace had caused in placing it on the basis the present times require, in short, and making it at once the most scientific and the most practical of the armies of Europe. (Applause.) Lastly, by the service to which I have the honour to belong, he will be welcomed as one who has had much able training at home in the work of the Indian Government, both at the late Board of Control and subsequently at the India Office, and who therefore comes not as one ignorant of the principles and details of the Government over which he presides, but able to bring the home theories to the test of local experience, and be therefore the better able to evolve surer and more successful because more practical schemes for the future—schemes which recommended by one who has the benefit of such antecedents, will not only be accepted here, but will commend themselves most strongly to the Government at home. (Applause.) My Lords and Gentlemen, with these few observations feebly put, I will in your name wish His Excellency Lord Northbrook health and success in the great work on which he has just entered, and express a hope that when his term of office shall draw to a close, this Club may, as he returns home, be again privileged to have him as a guest. When I feel assured that whoever may occupy the chair I have the honour to fill this evening, will, in wishing Lord Northbrook 'farewell,' have much to speak of and much to thank him for—(applause)—to thank him for an improved system of finance, not based, as some would apparently advise, on the meagre policy of retrenchment—(applause)—but on a wise adjustment of income and expenditure, for a thoroughly complete system of remunerative works which will prove the most lasting memorials of British rule, for a more liberal policy of decentralization founded on a confidence in the good sense and judgment of the local Governments—(applause)—which aided by local experience will enable them to carry out schemes for the material and moral progress of their presidencies with economy and success, for a Statute Book not only reduced in bulk, free from that experimental and theoretical legislation which had not yet found a place in the Statute Books of the most civilized nations of the world, and above all, to thank him for leaving the Government of India in a more sure position, to demand the respect and esteem of the native Chiefs in alliance with it, and at the same time leave it more securely fixed in the love and gratitude of those races and creeds whose common bond is that of allegiance to our most gracious Sovereign. (Loud applause.)

The Viceroy, in returning thanks, said—I feel considerable difficulty in finding adequate terms to express my thanks for the manner in which you have received the toast proposed by Mr. Justice Gibbs. I feel much obliged to the members of the Byculla Club for the compliment they have paid me, and I consider it a high honour to be received by them in the manner in which I have been received this evening. One likes to be reminded sometimes of what takes place at home, and I like especially this old English custom of meeting together at dinner on such occasions as this. I can assure you that the compliment you have paid me will be remembered by me with feelings of satisfaction as being a mark of respect to Her Majesty's representative in India, and also of gratitude as an expression of your kind feeling towards myself personally. (Applause.) What Mr. Justice Gibbs has said reminds me of the great difference between meetings of this sort in India and similar meetings at home. How often one has heard in England at meetings like the present that no political discussion will be allowed, and yet the very first speaker generally manages somehow or another to introduce all the political topics of the day. Here in India we are relieved at any rate from any such delicacy; the excitement of English party politics fade away and disappear before the three weeks' voyage which brings us to India has come to an end. Here, too, our life is wrapped up in daily pursuits; each of us has much and important work to do which leaves but little room in our minds for other things. In India the great broad principles of Government remain the same, of whatever politics the Viceroy or the members of his council may be; changes of action there may be of course to meet the varying circumstances of the times, but of late years at least the foundations of English policy in India ever remain the same. (Applause.) For these reasons I need not apologize for making a few remarks on the present occasion upon Indian public affairs. (Applause.) My visit to Bombay is made in the course of one of those tours which my predecessors have been accustomed to make through different parts of India. These tours have a real object; they are not mere journeys of pleasure or even of ceremony; but though I say they are not tours of ceremony, I do not depreciate the importance of ceremonies such as those in which we have lately assisted. For I think that to bring Her Majesty into contact with the chiefs and princes of India through her representative has great and important political results; this however is not the only use of these tours, there are other and important advantages to be derived from them. There is the fact of passing over large tracts of country, and of seeing vast collections of people, differing in their religion, in their race, and in their customs, as I have seen them elsewhere, but here perhaps in a more striking degree than in any other city in India. One has read and heard of these things; but to see that vast extent of country and the various peoples that inhabit it, brings more prominently and vividly before you the conviction that no uniform system of government can be suited to all parts of Her Majesty's Indian Empire, that the differences that exist in it are real and have a vital interest, and are not mere matters of past history. In addition to the advantage of seeing the country and its inhabitants, there are institutions of all kinds to be seen in their actual working, there are also questions of local interest to be considered—questions which are often settled at once at an interview by personal communication, but which if left to correspondence, might not be settled without considerable discussion and delay. (Applause.) I can mention some instances of this sort which have occurred during my present tour. On my way through the Punjab I found a long pending question as to the protection of the arsenal at Ferozepore; I found also at Mooltan the question as to the position of the Fort which I was able to decide with the assistance of the Commander-in-Chief. I had also to consider how the introduction of a more uniform and regular system of law into the Punjab and the consequent increase of judicial business could best be reconciled with the maintenance of the full authority and influence of the executive officers. I found that question referred for the decision of the Government of India by the Secretary of State, and I had the great advantage of discussing it on the spot with the Lieutenant-Governor and many local officers of the province, and I hope and believe that this will lead to a satisfactory conclusion. (Applause.) I experienced in passing down the Indus some of the difficulties that attend navigation on that great river; and I had a practical proof of the importance of completing the railway communication between Kurrachee and the Punjab. (Applause.) I saw the Khan of Khelat at Sukkur, and I hope established on a firm footing our frontier relations by giving my hearty support to the action of Major Harrison and by expressing to the Khan my complete confidence in Sir William Merewether, the Chief Commissioner of Sind. (Applause.) Here too, in Bombay, are questions which I hope to be able to deal with in a more satisfactory manner from my having been on the spot and able to communicate personally with those concerned in their settlement. I was glad to learn from the mercantile community their opinion upon some subjects affecting the commercial interests of the port; for instance, the export duty on wheat and the completion of the Elphinstone Docks. I am glad too to have seen the directors of the Bank of Bombay and to have heard their opinion as to the future management of that institution. I shall also be able to consider the question of the position of the arsenals with the assistance of General Norman. I have had the benefit of consulting Sir Philip Wodehouse on the policy of the further development of what is called the Provincial assignment system. I have for a long time been an advocate of the principle of allowing to the local Governments throughout India large powers in respect to the administration of those parts of the Empire entrusted to their care, therefore the policy of Lord Mayo, under which a great advance has been made in this direction, has my hearty concurrence. Lord Mayo thought that that policy was capable of further extension, and that what was done two years ago was only a beginning. Agreeing in that opinion, I am especially glad in having the assistance of Sir Philip Wodehouse in considering what steps should be taken to carry out these views by giving to the local Governments an interest in the development of the principal sources of the imperial as well as in the economical administration of the main branches of expenditure. (Applause.) I fear I may have wearied you with this enumeration of subjects of interest that occupied my attention, but I wish you to know that my tour has not been a journey of pleasure or a progress of ceremony, but that my visit and that of the members of the Government of India to Bombay is intended for business purposes. (Applause.) But I assure you that the transaction of that business has been rendered easy and pleasant by the cordial welcome we have received in this city. (Loud applause.) This is not the place to dilate upon the benefits that I have derived from becoming acquainted with the opinions of the natives of this country; I desire on this occasion to express the value I attach to the personal communications that I have held with my own countrymen. (Applause.) Since I have been in India and throughout my journey I have found the great Indian Civil Service maintaining its high historic reputation. (Applause.) I can sincerely say that during a considerable experience of all branches of the public service at home, I have never met with any department more ably administered than are some of the departments of the Government of India. (Loud applause.) When I visited the Punjab I found that the reputation which the service in that province gained under Henry and John Lawrence had not passed away, and that the old spirit that animated those who were brought up under those great men still survives. (Applause.) In Scinde, I found the principal positions filled by officers of the army, no unworthy successors of the pioneers of British influence in that country. (Applause.) In Bombay, too, the Civil Service has no need to fear comparison with their predecessors of the olden time (applause) under Mount Steuart Elphinstone and the other distinguished statesmen that shed lustre over its early Government. (Great applause.) Mr. Justice Gibbs has alluded to the connection of my family with commerce. That is a connection of which I shall always feel proud. (Applause.) I am glad to have the opportunity of saying that I have found in India the same cordial assistance from commercial men whenever I have had occasion to consult them upon public affairs—and of this I am sure Sir Richard Temple, as the Finance Minister, would bear willing testimony—as at home has always been given by them to Her Majesty's Government. From many members of the great professions which are all represented here this evening—the army, the navy, and that profession which is so well represented by Mr. Justice Gibbs, I have received great assistance, and lastly, I have met Her Majesty's representative in Bombay, Sir Philip Wodehouse. (Applause.) I did not apprehend that there would be any serious differences of opinion between us, but I have derived the greatest advantages from the opportunity of entering into free personal communication with him, and I am happy to find we are cordially agreed upon all matters of public importance which are likely to arise. I have in conclusion to perform the pleasant duty of asking you to express your thanks to our hosts this evening by drinking to the success of the "Byculla Club." (Loud and prolonged applause.)

The toast was then drunk with loud applause.

The Hon. Mr. Tucker rose and said—My Lord Northbrook, Sir Philip Wodehouse, and Gentlemen,—As one of the most ancient members of the club now present, the committee have delegated to me the duty of returning thanks on behalf of the members, to your Excellencies, and to our other illustrious guests for the kind and cordial manner in which the toast of prosperity to the Byculla Club has been proposed to and received by so distinguished an audience. My hon. friend, the Chairman, has already expressed to your Lordship the gratification which we all feel, that amidst the more serious and arduous duties which devolve upon a person discharging your high function, you Lordship should have been able to find leisure to spare to us a few hours this evening, and to give us an opportunity of showing in our small way the esteem and respect which we all entertain for the representative of our most Gracious Sovereign, on this his first official visit to Western India. The Byculla Club represents, in a greater or less degree, all classes in the European community in this island, and, as it is to a large extent composed of British born subjects of Her Majesty, it would be surprising indeed if its members were backward in seizing an opportunity of showing their loyalty and affection for the Crown, and I may say that they are not alone or singular in this respect, and that throughout this large and populous city there is not a section of the resident community, of whatever race or creed, who would not have been glad to have obtained the privilege which we enjoy to-night of doing honour to the Ruler whom Her Majesty has sent to govern Her Indian Empire. At a social gathering of this character, and in the presence of those with whom it rests to decide authoritatively upon the great questions which are constantly arising with reference to our Indian administration, it would be out of place on my part to enter upon the discussion of political topics, nor is this a fitting time or place to talk upon our own municipal affairs which have recently attracted so much attention. I may remark, however, with reference to what has fallen from your Lordship, regarding the expediency and practical utility of Viceregal circuits, for the purpose of ascertaining the wants and desires of the different classes of the population and for establishing a more intimate acquaintance between the Rulers and the ruled, that on this side of India there will be no dissentients from the doctrines which have been propounded to-night, and I would add that the members of the Byculla Club, as well as all classes of the inhabitants of this great city, which has grown under British rule from a small fishing village into the rich and thickly inhabited town, what you have all seen, and which I trust is capable of still more extensive development, will hail with delight repetition of such visits if their accomplishment be possible during your Excellency's tenure of office. You may rely, my Lord, that, however often you may come, you will receive the same sincere and hearty welcome. Gentlemen, I again thank you all for the honour you have done the club by your presence on this auspicious occasion.

Sir Richard Temple said—Mr. President and Gentlemen,—I have been requested to propose for your cordial acceptance the health of your Governor, Sir Philip Wodehouse. (Applause.) My own unworthiness as a stranger for such a task will be made up for by the worthiness and excellence of my theme, for Sir Philip Wodehouse has come to India with the prestige and the auspicious omen derived from successful service in other places—Ceylon, Honduras, Demerara and the Cape. Thus he is a man tried in various lands and climates, in various conjunctures, circumstances and capacities, in relation with various sections of the human race—sometimes in the direction of peaceful industry, sometimes in the contentions which beset public life, sometimes in armed negotiations with savage tribes on wild frontiers. He is indeed a type of that class of men who have never failed England in the hour of need—(applause)—who are the pioneers of English influence everywhere, who are the pillars of that fabric of British power which beneficially overshadows so many portions of the civilized and the uncivilized globe. (Applause.) He is a man, in short, trained and destined like Æneas of old, "tot volvere casus tot adire labores." Such, Gentlemen, is the toast I have to propose to a mixed company of gentlemen, official and non-official. Doubtless my official hearers, our brother officers, members of the Civil and Military services, will specially welcome the Governor, and regard him with the same fraternal sympathy as if he had belonged to our own body even as if he had been one of us, recognising that the presence of such a man among us constitutes a real addition to the administrative power and the governing force of British India. (Applause.) The non-official portion of the company is so varied in its constitution as to represent all the principal interests of the Presidency committed to the Governor's charge. Around this table are gathered the representatives of that traffic which coming from across the seas, penetrates far inland to remote districts high up the Goojerat Coast and across the Ghaut mountains to the table-lands beyond—representatives of those banking centres and that money market which supplies the very life-blood of the commerce of Western India, and which are to the trading system what the heart and the circulation of the blood are to the physical frame—(hear, hear)—representatives of that forensic eloquence and learning which constitute the best guarantee for the preservation of individual right, representatives of those sacred professions which are to teach us all to turn our thoughts to higher objects. (Hear, hear.) In short, the company to-night reflects the various elements, interests, aspirations, progressive impulses which have made Bombay what it is, which have placed it in the very foremost van of the provinces of India—(applause)—which have carried it so bravely through so many trials and vicissitudes. (Applause.) I am therefore proposing the Governor's health to those who well know what the toast implies. You know, Gentlemen, that a community is not exactly what its Government makes it, but rather what it makes itself; that its prosperity must be of its own acquiring; that its evils are often those which kings cannot cure and governments cannot avert—nevertheless you will probably acknowledge that in a country like this much does depend on the Governor of the day in respect to appropriate legislation, to considerate administration, to the discriminating encouragement of private enterprise, to the judicious application of the public funds, to the guidance of our native fellow subjects, to the elevation of their ideas, and to the indication to them of the way to better and nobler things—(applause)—and certainly no Indian population is more likely to repay such efforts, or gives better promise of progress than the people of Bombay. (Hear, hear.) Such is the career, Gentlemen, in which it is proposed that we should drink to the prosperity and success of the Governor. In the interests of the people and of humanity we must hope that there may reign such uninterrupted peace and prosperity that little demand may be made for the exercise of those sterner and grander qualities which we know him to possess. (Applause.) But in this land of uncertainty and crises, we hardly dare to believe that such a hope can be realised. And if dangers and difficulties must needs arise, we may trust that Providence will endow him with that wisdom, fortitude and energy which shall command success. And when the culminating point in his career shall be reached, we trust that he may quit this shore for his native land, amidst the acclamations of his fellow citizens, and that future history may inscribe his name on the time-honoured and illustrious roll of the Governors of Bombay. (Loud applause.) And now, Gentlemen, I give the toast of Sir Philip Wodehouse. (Loud applause.)

Sir Philip Wodehouse said—My Lord, Mr. Chairman, and Gentlemen,—I had certainly hoped, that when the arrangements for this banquet were under consideration and discussion, although you had done me the favour of inviting me to be your guest, I might have been regarded, for the time being at any rate, as so completely one of yourselves, that I should have been spared the task of returning thanks for my own health and of listening to the flattering allusion to myself which you have just heard from my friend, Sir R. Temple. I confess that, when I first heard of the projected visit of the Viceroy to Bombay, I felt very apprehensive as to the degree of responsibility which must attach to me as the temporary head of the society of this great city, in respect to the arrangements for his reception. It was clear that we were about to receive the visit not of the Viceroy alone, but, for the first time in history of the actual Government of India, that he was to come among us accompanied by those men who through their distinguished abilities and exertions had earned the honourable distinction of being his Councillors and advisers in the administration of this great empire. I could not doubt that it would be the wish of all classes of the people of this loyal city to do him and them all due honour. Moreover I have come to this country with the conviction that the Governments of India, Madras, and Bombay, must each and all be regarded merely as component parts of the British Government of British India, and that the good government of its vast population must depend on their cordial cooperation. Honours rendered to one were honours rendered to all. I do not think after all we have seen during the last few days that I incorrectly estimated the feelings of the people of Bombay. Those who had the good fortune to witness much of the procession on the occasion of his Excellency's landing, must have seen a sight they were not likely soon to forget—the enormous crowd in the streets, the houses filled to the very roof with eager spectators, the cordial welcome accorded, and the amazing orderly behaviour throughout were most remarkable. What has followed has been in harmony with the commencement. But it should not be supposed that all these proceedings have been unaccompanied with trouble—and very great trouble too—and I hope I may properly in your presence tender my best thanks for the exertions that have been made. Taking them in chronological order, the marine, the military, the police, the civil establishments—and certainly not least, the members of my own staff, have been conspiring in their efforts to act up to the occasion. I am bound also to say a few words in respect to the Native Princes and Chiefs whose presence has added so greatly to the interest of all that has taken place. The Viceroy was good enough in his speech in the Durbar to express his satisfaction at their conduct, but it may be permitted to me, with more acquaintance with details, to add my acknowledgments for the efforts they have made, in some cases at the cost of great inconvenience, to be present here. With, I think but a single exception, all who were really able made a point of availing themselves of so rare an opportunity of evincing their loyalty and respect for the Government of the Queen. I cannot, however, admit that the obligation is all on one side. It must be of great advantage, it must be a source of pleasure to them, by means of this great social and political gathering, to have opportunities, free from the extreme formalities in ordinary use, of meeting in friendly intercourse with each other. I was much struck with a case in point. A few evenings ago I was in conversation with one of the highest rank from the extreme south, another from Central India accosted me with the question: "Is this Travancore," and on the strength of this unceremonious introduction I left them in friendly conversation. But in another respect these gatherings must be very useful. The Government is now training a number of these youthful Chiefs, for whose conduct in after life we shall be seriously responsible; and I think it very desirable that they should thus be brought into contact with the world at large, and learn not only that there are persons entitled to more guns than themselves, but also that there are other people quite as good as they are, who get no guns at all. In short, I trust that not only to them but to the whole people of this presidency, advantages—some that we cannot now foresee—may in years to come accrue from this visit of the Viceroy and the Government of India. I beg to thank you for the very kind manner in which you have been pleased to drink my health.

THE LEVEE AT POONA.

On Saturday, at 4 o'clock P.M., His Excellency the Viceroy, accompanied by Sir Philip Wodehouse, entered the Council Hall under a royal salute from the artillery. M.'s 68th Regiment with regimental colours and band, under the command of a field officer, were drawn opposite the Council Hall, to receive His Excellency the Viceroy. The F-9th Brigade R. THE FIFTH CRIMINAL SESSIONS.

A DEAD LOCK.

On Saturday last, the presiding judge, the Hon. Mr. Justice Gibbs, took his seat on the Bench at the usual hour, 10 o'clock, and a common jury was empannelled to try case No. 19 of the calendar, which had been fixed on the preceding day. Owing, however, to the mismanagement of the police, neither the prosecutor nor his witnesses were present; and as the counsel in the next case, thinking that it would not be called on until late in the day, was absent, the court and jury had to wait a full hour. At 11 A. M., the counsel in the latter case came in and the business of the Sessions commenced after a precious hour had been wasted. His Lordship instructed the Clerk of the Crown to bring to the notice of the Commissioner of Police the laches of his subordinates in this instance.

CHEATING.

Luckhmidas Nagjee was charged with cheating Maneck-lal Atmaram, a clerk in the employ of Messrs. Jefferson and Payne, and thereby inducing him to pay to him (prisoner) Rs. 1,100. Mr. Farran appeared for the prosecution, and Mr. Inverarity defended the prisoner.

The facts of the case are briefly these. Some time in November 1871, one Narrotumdas was called by the prisoner and another man named Bhanjee Gordhum, and asked if he could obtain a customer for certain gold ornaments which they had for sale, or obtain them a loan on the security of the ornaments. Narrotumdas went and communicated with the prosecutor, and after some negotiations prosecutor was induced to lend Rs. 1,100 on the security of the ornaments. He took the ornaments to a shop, where they were weighed, the prisoner and Bhanjee all the time assuring him that they were of pure gold Prosecutor then gave them Rs. 200, and afterwards Rs. 900, which he drew from a Bank. He proposed that prisoner and Bhanjee should sign an entry in his books to the effect that they had borrowed the amount on the security of gold ornaments. Bhanjee hesitated, and an entry was eventually made only in the name of the prisoner, who signed it. Prosecutor had no suspicion for some time, but afterwards he had the ornaments examined and found they were not of gold. He laid an information against prisoner and Bhanjee, and warrants were issued against them, but the latter absconded and had not yet been arrested; and the prisoner, therefore, was the only person charged with the offence.

A number of witnesses were examined for the prosecution, after which Mr. Inverarity addressed the jury on behalf of the prisoner.

The jury found the prisoner not guilty, and he was discharged.

A TREASURE CHEST.

Lalajee Jeewalal Lalajee, a Marwaree, was charged with cheating Annajeerao Venkutrao and dishonestly inducing him to deliver several sums of money to Gunputrao Bappoo and others, by dishonestly deceiving Annajeerao into the belief that an iron chest, buried near the village of Tulloja near Panwell, contained bars of gold and ornaments of the value of twenty-five lacs of rupees. Mr. Lang appeared for the prosecution. Mr. Inverarity defended the prisoner.

The facts of the case are few and simple. The prisoner represented to the prosecutor that Bhow Scindhia, the prime minister of the late Gaekwar, having been put into prison by the present Maharajah, had sent away the greater part of his treasure in an iron chest, which then lay buried by his confidential agents in a field near Tulloja near Panwell. Prisoner subsequently introduced to the prosecutor two men as the agents of Bhow Scindhia, to whom he was induced from time to time to make advances of money amounting in the aggregate to Rs. 2,050, in addition to a present of two dhoters and two turbans. Prosecutor was taken to the field at Tulloja in which the treasure chest was supposed to be buried; but on some pretence or another the intention of digging it out was postponed until a more favourable opportunity occurred. Prosecutor was thus induced to pay two or three visits to the field at Tulloja. Subsequently, the prisoner and his companions undertook to bring the chest into Mahim. On a day agreed upon, the prosecutor hired a carriage and proceeded with the prisoner and his accomplices to Mahim to bring home the treasure trove. They proceeded to Mahim; the iron chest was put into prosecutor's carriage; and on arrival in Bombay, he took it to his house. It had been arranged that prosecutor should open it in the presence of the prisoner and his accomplices. These men, however, were not to be found in Bombay; and prosecutor, after waiting for them two or three days, opened the treasure chest in the hope of appropriating the whole of the treasure it contained. But, instead of the gold bars and ornaments he looked for, he found in it nothing but rice and stones. A report was made to the police, and the prisoner was arrested. His companions had the good sense to leave Bombay far behind them and have not yet been arrested.

The prosecutor was examined in chief, but his cross-examination was not finished when the court rose at 5 P. M. The jury were allowed to separate with the usual warning not to converse with anybody on the subject of the trial, which will be resumed at 10 o'clock this morning.

ALARMING CARRIAGE ACCIDENT IN CHURCH GATE STREET.

A serious accident, which might have proved disastrous in its consequences, occurred in Church Street last night. During the time of evening service at the Cathedral, a carriage belonging to Mr. L. R. Ashburner, C.S.I., with a pair of powerful Australian horses, was standing in a row of other carriages; and while the coachman got down to smoke his beeree, the horses got restive and plunged into the adjoining carriages. The consequence was that a carriage said to belong to Mr. F. H. Souter, C.S.I., had a wheel knocked to pieces, and other carriages more or less damaged. The horses, dragging the carriage, ran down Church Street in the direction of the Frere Fountain, and, dashing against the iron railing, and breaking down about 8 feet of it, sustained a fall which might have proved fatal to both. Fortunately, however, one of them got his head and fore-feet stuck into the railings, while the other was thrown with considerable violence into the vacant space between the railings and the lower basin of the fountain. Immediate assistance was rendered, and the horses being extricated from their difficult position, were sent for treatment to a veterinary surgeon's, and the carriage to a coach-builder's.

ANOTHER ACCOUNT.

Last evening, when the service in the Cathedral had just commenced, the congregation were thrown into a state of great excitement by a sudden commotion in the road outside—a gallopping of horses, rattling of wheels, and shouting. Every one looked at his or her neighbour and thought, "Is that my horse running away? I wish I could go and see"—and we fear the service must have lost much of its solemnity for all who had carriages waiting outside, as it was impossible to say whose horses had bolted and equally certain that some horse or horses had run away with a carriage behind them. We fear but little attention was paid to the sermon,—which was preached by the Rev. Mr. Maule, the Bishop not being present—and people thronged out rapidly when the service was concluded, each one fearing to find his gharree either non est or smashed up. At about a quarter past seven the service was over, and we left the Cathedral in search of the wreck which we felt sure must be somewhere about. At the top of Church Gate Street we found a crowd collected around an open carriage belonging to Mr. Ashburner, Revenue Commissioner, which bore evident tokens of great ill-usage—the pole being broken short off and the splinter bar also broken. The horses—a pair of powerful Australians—the same that were the cause of a similar accident about a year ago at the Esplanade Band Stand—were standing on the pathway in charge of the ghorawallas, who, we fancy, would find their berths unpleasantly warm for them on reaching home last night. In addition to the damage to the gharree itself, the horses in dashing off came into collision with a carriage belonging to Mr. Souter, Commissioner of Police, and took off a wheel. They then dashed up Church Gate Street, ran over the narrow pavement round the Frere Fountain, and dashed through the iron railings on to the grass, breaking away some eight feet of rails, which were bent almost to the ground with the terrific force of the concussion. So far as we could see, the horses had suffered no serious injury, but, we fear, they must both have been severely hurt. We think many persons must be congratulating themselves; it is certainly somewhat surprising that, considering the press of carriages at the Cathedral more damage has not been done.

COTTON CROP REPORT.

GUZERAT.

Mr. F. Turner, District Inspector for Guzerat, reports up to 18th instant, as follows:—

"Dhollera.—The cotton crop continues to promise well; the most forward fields are now in blossom. All the cotton fields around Dundooka and Ranpore are very healthy, and a fine picking is expected. The wheat crop is doing well. Wheat 16 seers, dhall 10, bajree 19, rice 8 per rupee. 223 bales of cotton were exported during the week.

"Ahmedabad.—Cotton plants looking very well. Cold weather crops all sown. Weather cool and favourable. Dew falling. Rates same as last week.

"Jambooser.—A north wind has been blowing during the week. No dew. Cotton plants looking very healthy. In Jambooser locusts have made their appearance and some of the grain fields are injured. Ginned cotton Rs. 22 per Bengal maund. Churka Rs. 19-8-0. Dangar 21 seers, mutu 18, bajri 18, joowaree 20, wheat 12¼, gram 10¾ per rupee.

"Kaira.—Bajree and other grain crops are all cut down. Winter crops in good condition. Weather cooler. Cotton Rs. 18 per Bengal maund. Rice 12 seers, toor dhall 11, wheat 12¼, kodra 27, bajree 18 per rupee."

The following report up to 18th idem, has been furnished by Mr. A. Stormont, Superintendent of Experiments, Surat and Broach:—

"Cotton and other crops are in good condition. The wheat is certainly somewhat backward, but nevertheless very healthy.

"The proportion of cotton to other crops seems to be considerably less here (Vadloo) than in the more easterly parts of Broach district. At present the plants are much smaller, which however may be owing to late sowing.

"The jowaree (curby) is now being harvested. The crop is in every way satisfactory.

"The young wheat here is in advance of most other parts. I daresay the land is found suitable, and consequently its cultivation is somewhat extensive.

"The breaking up and preparation of fallow land is being carried on slowly in the intervals of more important branches of field work."

KHANDEISH.

Mr. C. Wilkinson, District Inspector for Khandeish and the Deccan, submits the following report up to 19th instant:—

"The weather is unchanged. With the exception of jowaree and toor, the khurreef crop is harvested, and the yield very satisfactory.

"The cotton crop will not be so large as it promised to be at the end of September, for as usual there was a heavy loss of bolls and flowers last month. In parts of Dhoolia, Amalnir, &c., it is very poor, but it improves northward. From personal observation and late reports, I am now inclined to estimate the yield at about 12 annas, or 60 lbs. per acre. In eleven out of nineteen cotton growing talookas of Khandeish and Nassick the cotton area is 32 per cent. larger than last year's (428,464 acres), and the increase in the remaining talookas (from which reports are not yet to hand) is probably on the same scale. The quality of the staple, so far as I have yet examined it, is up to the average; and its condition is unusually good for Khandeish cotton. Ginning is going on but only on a small scale, as the hands are still employed in the fields.

"In Poona and Sattara, the cotton crop promises well. The khureef is nearly reaped and the rubbee requires rain."

The subjoined report, up to 18th idem, has been forwarded by Mr. J. Milne, Superintendent of Experiments, Khandeish:—

"The weather continues clear and very favourable for harvest operations. Cotton picking is going on, and ginning operations are commenced, the cotton in general being of excellent quality. Jowaree is still being reaped, and a very fine crop it is.

"The rubbee crop is healthy and progressing most favorably. Nights and mornings are now very cool.

"Price of kuppas per maund of 90 lbs. Rs. 5 to Rs 5½.

"Price of grain in the bazaar as follows:—

Jowaree ....13 seers per rupee.
Bajree ....12 do. do.
Wheat .... 9 do. do."

SOUTHERN MAHRATTA COUNTRY.

Mr. W. Walton, District Inspector for the Southern Mahratta Country, reports up to 16th inst. as follows:—

"The weather during the week has not been nearly so good for the later crops as it was during the preceding one. It has been generally hot for the time of year, with strong easterly winds and but little dew at night. Reports, however, still continue good, and as yet there is a reasonable anticipation of a more than usually good cotton crop. Rice, jowaree, and bajree are being harvested. The crop is generally a good one, and in many places far over the average. Down at the coast and up-country very little indeed has as yet been done in 'old' cotton. The dealers, as a rule, will not sell within the margin that agents are authorized to give from Bombay. In fact the local dealers do not seem at all anxious to do business just now. I have never before seen so little cotton on its way to the coast in the month of November. The returns of area sown with cotton are not yet complete, but so far as they have gone they show as follows:—

	1871-72.	1872-73.
	Acres.	Acres.
Dharwar in 9 talookas ...	475,914	500,000
Belgaum in 7 talookas ..	161,476	157,476
Kaladghee in 8 talookas.	309,659	266,237
Total......	947,049	923,713

These returns are exclusive of the jaghire States of the Southern Mahrata Country. The cotton plants continue to make fair progress; in some of the early sown fields they are in flower."

The annexed report from Mr. W. Shearer, Superintendent of Experiments, Dharwar, is up to 16th idem:—

"No rain has been registered here during the week, although passing showers have been falling in the neighbourhood.

"The cotton crops have made very slight progress generally, although in places the plants have attained a good size, and are showing flower buds. There are no effects observable from these easterly winds, although they generally affect the cotton crop at this season. The fields in this part of the district are still very dirty and require a good deal of surface cleaning."

SIND.

Mr. A. W. Hughes, District Inspector in Sind, writes up to the 14th instant, as follows:—

"No rain during the week, but weather warmer than is usual at this season of the year. Reports of the cotton crops from various parts of the Punjab still favourable. Cotton picking in some of the upper Sind districts finished. Out-turn expected to be a fair one, but details not yet received."

The subjoined report up to 14th idem is furnished by Mr. W. Strachan, Superintendent of Experiments in Sind:—

"Since last report there is little new to speak of so far as cotton or grain fields are concerned. Green fly and boll worm are both prevalent in the fields of both our American and Sind cotton, and in consequence the yield from the former will be less than it was last season, though during the early part of the season it gave hopes of a heavier return.

"On the Government farm the Sind cotton will be a higher average this season than it was last year. I at present expect some of the fields to give from 250 lbs. to 300 lbs. clean cotton per acre. The opinion of the general crop is not quite so favourable. Many of the fields are very thirsty looking and will soon cease yielding staple worth picking. Such crops as carrots, tobacco, onions, sweet potatoes, &c., are inferior to last season's crop mainly from the want of water a few weeks longer. The few early planted tobacco fields in this neighbourhood are, however, very fine, but they are also very few in number.

"Fever is prevalent all round. The weather is pretty comfortable now. The night temperature for the week ending 9th instant, averages 52° 4' and the maximum in shade 93° 5', while the maximum exposed to the sun gave an average of 158° 1', Fahrenheit. Between the 23rd March and 14th September, the maximum temperature in shade was seldom under 100 degrees."

A. E. W. MOORE, Major,
Offg. Cotton Commissioner.

INDIAN ITEMS.

The Reverend Francis Baring, a nephew of the Viceroy of India, was a passenger to Calcutta in the steamer Viceroy. Mr. Baring is a missionary of the Church mission society, and belongs to the Northern India Mission.—Delhi Gazette.

The second son of the Khedive, who is now receiving a university education in England, is about to make a three or four months' tour in India as the guest of the British Government. He will afterwards probably visit China and Japan. Any hospitality Englishmen in India can extend to the Khedive's son is well due, considering the hospitality so often shown by his father to Englishmen in Egypt.

Three iron cooking ranges, the property of Government, were recently landed at Negapatam from a coasting steamer. They were then forwarded to Trichinopoly and thence to Madras, where they were put to public auction and sold for nine rupees. But at the same time a bill of eighty-one rupees for the conveyance of these precious ranges by the railway authorities was put in. This is economy with a vengeance.—Delhi Gazette.

We are informed on good authority that the epidemic fever is still on the increase in Burdwan and Beerbhoom, but has not spread further into Bancoorah since we last wrote. There are 32 native doctors in Burdwan (not 60 as stated by the Englishman a few days ago) and only four in Beerbhoom. The Commissioner of Burdwan is said to be quite alive to the wants of the latter district, has visited the place twice, and has ordered the Magistrate of Burdwan to send as many doctors as he can spare to Beerbhoom. It is a pity, however, to deprive one malarious locality of aid to help another, and we hope that some other mode of relieving Beerbhoom may be discovered. Why cannot some of the more healthy neighbouring districts spare a native doctor to send there? Half a dozen districts or more, we are told, not two hundred miles away have two or three native doctors, and could easily spare one, at this time of the year. There is no doubt that the fever is spreading and has invaded parts of Moorshedabad. We are informed that nearly a hundred persons have died in a short time in one village not many miles from Rampore Haut. We also hear that cholera has appeared in Beerbhoom on the banks of the Moor river and is making its way eastwards towards Moorshedabad. We have overstated nothing we assure our readers, as to the sad position of affairs.—Friend of India.

The Kokanies, as they call themselves, who are being escorted out of India by the police, arrived in Lahore last week and encamped under a strong police guard under a clump of trees not far from the railway station. There were altogether 139 of them. In appearance they were true gipsies. The men wear long hair like women, and as a rule, had little beard or moustache. The women were all well-featured, some being very pretty. The description previously given of them appears to have been correct. They are a noisy, forward lot, with a marvellous amount of cheek and slang and a perfect want of anything like shyness. No sooner does a stranger appear among them than he is saluted on all sides in the most familiar way and a little crowd at once forms, one begging pice, another producing a little store of precious stones for sale from a nest of sawdust in the corner of his cupra, another loafs suspiciously round the region of the coat tails, another suggests a present of a jewel, and so forth. Their police guard stated that they were the most noisy, unruly lot of natives they ever had charge of. Their ability in the stealing line was something marvellous, and they were up to all sort of tricks to deceive and evade the guard. They were reported to have a very large amount of "plunder" and they certainly all seemed well off and particularly cheerful. They left on Sunday night by rail for Mooltan under a strong police guard, commanded by Mr. Jackson, Assistant District Superintendent of Police. These so-called Kokanies, or rather Khurassani Magadhs, on whose language and history we commented some issues ago, will, no doubt, again return to India in a few years. The Khokanies (whose only title to the name is that they come from a village called Kuhkan) will never venture through the Dehra Ghazi Passes, where their enemies of the Sunni faith (they themselves being Shiahs) wait to kill them. They will, probably, be hanging about the frontier till they get an opportunity of paying us another visit.—Indian Public Opinion.

PICKINGS FROM PUNCH OF NOVEMBER 2.

A SOLEMN ADMONITION.

"Now, tea-kettle! don't you sing on a Sunday!"

RAILINGS FROM THE EMBANKMENT.

"Rich Benchers, why this hideous boarding;
So full of wealth, why take to hoarding?"

WRONG IN THE HEAD.

Mrs. Malaprop, whose acquaintance with surgical terms is evidently somewhat imperfect, persists in saying that she once knew a man who was successfully Japanned.

A DEEP SUBJECT.

Careful naturalists, who have devoted much time and attention to ichthyological studies, tell us that, after long and patient investigation, they have arrived at the conclusion that if fishes have a language, it is most probably Finnish.

OUR COUNTRYMEN ABROAD.

Mr. Shoddy—"I always say, Mrs. Sharp, that I never feel really safe from the ubiquitous British Snob till I am south of the Danube!"

Mrs. Sharp (innocently)—"And what do the—a—South Danubians say, Mr. Shoddy?"

ALE OR OPIUM?

The Chinese immigrants at the East end of London are teaching the population of that region to smoke opium. The knowledge of this fact must make Sir Wilfrid Lawson and his associates redouble their endeavours to destroy the liquor trade.

DIGNITY.

Club "Buttons"—"I'm at the 'Junior Peninsular' now."

Friend—"What! Did you 'get the sack' from 'the Reynolds'?"

Buttons (indignant)—"Go along with yer! 'Get the sack!' I sent in my resi'nation to the C'mmittee!!"

THOUGHT IN TRAFALGAR SQUARE.

The anniversary of the battle of Trafalgar occurred on the 21st October. In connection therewith may be mentioned a criticism which may perhaps have occurred to a foreigner contemplating Nelson's monument in Trafalgar Square. Nothing can be more natural than Sir Edwin Landseer's lions—but look at their lower jaws. The lions are all chap-fallen.

PORK PIE AND POETRY.

Once there was a Henry Kirke White who won fame by his poems. Now, according to the Lincoln, Rutland, and Stamford Mercury, there is a Henry Kirke White whose claim to distinction is his "noted Lincolnshire Star Pork Pies." Nothing can any longer shock us. No, not Samuel Taylor Coleridge's celebrated smoked bacon, or Percy Bysshe Shelley's genuine Oxford Sausage.

"WHAT NEXT?"

Affable Stranger (to country gentleman, who was just thinking of going out with his gun for an hour or two)—"Any birds!"

The Squire (uncertain as to the inquirer's identity, answers politely, but in depressed tone)—"Eh?—No—None!"

Affable Stranger—"Ah! it's just the same at our place!"

The Squire (seeing a chance of enlightenment)—"O indeed! Where—Where are you speaking of?"

Affable Stranger—"Ah, jus' so! Good morning!" (Hands him his card, and drives off.)

The Squire (reads)—"'Holborn! Smithers and Son! Grocers! Wholesale prices!'"

OCT. 18.—LETTER-WRITING, POLITE AND MINISTERIAL.

Writes Maguire:—"Very dear Mister Gladstone.
In a goal—not of free but of sad stone,
You've cooped up poor Davitt,
We Irish won't have it,
So loose him, my dear Mister Gladstone."

Writes Gladstone:—Dear Mister Maguire.
Touching Davitt I sent to inquire,
I forward B.'s letter.
P.S. Are you better?
I hope so, dear Mister Maguire."

Writes our "Home" Ruler:—"Dear Mister G.
Our D's points are two—mind, not 'three.'
Of these one ain't true,
And the other's not new.
P.S. He don't grumble, not he."

Growls John Bull:—"Come the sooner the better.
You stop all this writing of letter.
What! argue and reason
With dastardly treason,
Pshaw! rather the cat or the fetter."

A YOGI ON THE KOOS.

A lecture on the subject of Mesmerism, quoted in the Spiritualist newspaper, contains a passage which seems to have been written for illustration. It describes an Indian sage, in an extreme state of the reverie which other Orientals name Keff:—

"SELF-MESMERISM IN INDIA.

"In India devotees whose principal aim it is to realise what they call 'the emancipation of the spirit,' are called Yogis. They adopt a system of self-mesmerism. Vaughan, speaking of one of them, says, 'He planteth himself firmly on a spot that is undefiled, neither too high nor too low, and sitteth upon the sacred grass, which is called koos, covered with a skin and a cloth. Then he whose business is the restraining of his passions should sit with his mind fixed on one object alone; in the exercise of his devotion for the purification of his soul, keeping his head, his neck, and his body steady, without motion—his eyes fixed on the point of his nose, looking at no other place around.'"

We should be very much obliged to Lord Northbrook, or any other friend in India, who would have the kindness to send us a good photograph of a self-mesmerising Yogi squatted on the koos. With his eyes fixed on, and converging towards the point of the intervening feature, the Yogi would of course present to the beholder a most fearful squint—a case of temporary strabismus, which, to be imaginated, demands reminiscence of the effect on the visual organs produced by a wafer that a naughty little clown of a boy has clandestinely stuck on the tip of the nose of a baby.

IMPORTANT REDUCTION IN THE PRICE OF ICE.
S. ROSE & Co.'s REDUCTION IN PRICE FOR ICE MACHINES.

S. ROSE and Co. have a large number of the newly improved Ice-Making Machines originally introduced into Bombay in 1852 from their London Agency, No. 3 Chapel Place, Poultry, London—these machines are the "perfected" kind, not obtainable elsewhere except through their Agency.

S. ROSE and Co. would call particular attention to this fact, as there are attempts being made to introduce a spurious kind similar in appearance and at the same price hitherto charge. The Illustrated Catalogue of S. R and Co. fully describes the machine, and also states the reduced price they are enabled to supply them at.

STEUART AND COMPANY,

CARRIAGE BUILDERS,
CALCUTTA.

BY SPECIAL APPOINTMENT TO HIS EXCELLENCY THE RIGHT HON'BLE LORD NORTHBROOK, VICEROY AND GOVERNOR-GENERAL, G. M. S. I.,
HIS EXCELLENCY THE LATE EARL OF MAYO, K. P., G. M. S. I.,
AND
HIS MAJESTY THE KING OF SIAM.

ESTABLISHED 1775.

MR. ALLARDICE, of the above Firm, has arrived in Bombay with an extensive selection of the newest Coloured Designs of CARRIAGES of all descriptions, and will be happy to wait on any of the Princes or Chiefs now in Bombay at their Residences to receive any Orders with which they may be pleased to honour his Firm.

All Carriages built by STEUART & COMPANY are constructed entirely of thoroughly seasoned wood, and resist the effects of the climate much better than Carriages made in England, and will be found more than twice as durable, while for elegance of style and finish their work has been pronounced by competent authorities to be unsurpassable.

All Communications addressed to STEUART and COMPANY, Watson's Esplanade Hotel, will have prompt attention.

BULL'S PATENT HAND DREDGER, for SINKING WELLS through Sand in any position and to any depth.

For Sinking Irrigation Wells and for periodically cleaning out old Wells which have become foul or silted up it is particularly adapted.

This Machine is very largely used on the Oudh, Rohilkhund, Punjab Northern (State), and other Railways, in many cases in preference to any other machine.

Of numerous testimony to its great utility, the following are here given :—

Extract from Report of Guilford L. Molesworth, Esq., Consulting Engineer to the Government of India for State Railways, published in the Extra Supplement to the Gazette of India, of 16th September 1872.

"On the Ravee and Cheenab the well-sinking for the Piers has been very successful, a large number of Piers having been sunk 60 and 70 feet below low water level during past cold season. The wells have been sunk chiefly by the use of Bull's Dredger, which appears to have superseded the Sand Pump."

Extract from Notes of Progress on the works of the Punjab Northern (State) Railway by the Officiating Chief Engineer, published in the Supplement to the Gazette of India of 22nd June 1872:—

"It may be well here to observe that on all these works of ordinary sinking through sand or silt, the use of the sand pumps has been all but entirely superseded by that of "Bull's Dredger," which has proved itself a most excellent tool. In some cases it has permitted as much as 7 feet of descent in a 12' 6" diameter well to be effected in the 24 hours."

Price of each Machine delivered at any nearest Railway Station in India in direct communication with Lucknow is as follows:—

Capacity.	Inner diameter of Wells for which suitable.	Price.
Of 1 cubic foot	2 feet	Rs. 30 0 0
1½ "	3 "	60 0 0
2½ "	4 "	100 0 0
4 "	5 "	150 0 0
6 "	6 "	200 0 0

Those of one cubic foot capacity are suitable for the smallest size of Irrigation Wells, and will sink them through sand to a depth and in positions hitherto considered impracticable. Those above 2 feet are worked but by a steam hoist or crab winch.

Orders to be addressed to

BABOO SHAMA CHURN MOOKERJEE,
Agent for Mr. Bull's Patents, Lucknow.

BRISTOL'S SARSAPARILLA.

IS prepared in the most scientific manner, by thoroughly educated Chemists and Druggists, who have had many years' experience. It is not a simple extract from one article, but is compounded of extracts from a number of Roots, Herbs, Barks, and Leaves, all of which are possessed of some particular virtue or power in curing the diseases that have their source in the blood and humors; and these different vegetable extracts are combined in such a way as to retain, in its full strength, the special curative virtue possessed by each. The root of the Sarsaparilla plant, found in Honduras, is that which we use in this preparation; it is the kind which all medical men esteem most. About fifty per cent. of Bristol's Sarsaparilla consists of this concentrated extract, the remainder, as above stated, being composed of extracts from other powerful, cleansing, and healing vegetable substances. It does not contain anything that is dangerous or injurious to health, and in this, as in nearly every other respect, is entirely different from all other preparations sold under the name of Sarsaparilla.

By having our own agents at the places where the various roots, drugs, herbs and plants, composing our medicines, are produced, we are enabled to exercise that constant care in selection which insures uniformity of excellence; and we spare no money and no effort to procure the best—and only the best—of every article entering into their composition; and it is with the most abiding confidence we say, to the sick of all nations and all countries, that in Bristol's Sarsaparilla you have a remedy more reliable than any before offered to you, and which will not disappoint you in the cure of

Salt Rheum, Tetter, Scald Head,
Nervous and General Debility,
Old Sores, Ulcers, Tumors,
Abscesses, Boils, Eruptions,
Scrofula, or King's Evil,
Female Derangements,
White Swellings,
Fever and Ague,
Chills and Fever, & Dumb Ague.

As a means of building up the constitution that has been broken down by the excessive use of Mercury, Iron, or other Minerals, our Sarsaparilla will be found most excellent, and can be administered with safety to the weakest patients. As a purifier of the blood and humors, in the Spring and early Summer, it will be found unfailing. It can be taken freely at all seasons, rainy or dry. For some of the above diseases, the use of the Sarsaparilla must be continued a considerable time, especially for those that are hereditary or constitutional in their nature—such as Scrofula: but a faithful compliance with the directions will always relieve and mitigate, and in a great majority of cases will effect a complete cure. It will also be found, in all of the above diseases, that a cure will be greatly hastened by using our Bristol's Sugar-coated pills, in moderate doses, in connection with the Sarsaparilla; they carry off large quantities of morbific or diseased matter set free in the system by the Sarsaparilla, and in this way facilitate the return of normal functional operations.
